Walsh Takes On New Office In Admissions Post

Alexander Bradford Walsh has been appointed Senior Admissions Officer, it was announced Saturday. In making known the appointment, Dr. H. Locke Robertson, Principal and Vice-Chancellor, said that Walsh will be responsible for the general operation of the Admissions Office.

Although the University has been operating at near maximum capacity, the Principal stated that it was his "hope and expectation that every applicant who met the stipulated entrance requirements in 1963 would be admitted."

The new Admissions Officer, had, until his appointment, served as Assistant Director of the Placement Service. Prior to that Walsh had been Registrar of Macdonald College.

Speaking on behalf of the University Admissions Committee, under which Walsh will serve, Colin McDougall, Registrar, emphasized that no students who expected to meet the minimum entrance requirements in 1963 should be deterred from applying.

Debaters Take Title In IUDL Tournament

McGill debaters this weekend won the Inter-University Debating League Title by defeating Kingston's Royal Military College in the finals at McMaster University.

The two teams (Charles Dalen and Howard Golden-negative; Ronald Berger and Nick Russell, affirmative) are now the champions of the IUDL, a debating league which covers nine major universities in Quebec and Ontario. They will now compete in the National Finals against the winners of Canada's other three area leagues for the Laurier-MacDonald Trophy.

Euthanasia

The McGill debaters had already won the Eastern Section of the league. The topic for the entire series of debates has been "Resolved: that Euthanasia is justified". For the national tournament, however, there will be a new, and as yet unknown topic.

Saturday's victory was a close one: while the negative team lost on a split decision, they won on total points; the affirmative won on a split decision, but lost on points.

The affirmative team based their strength on a double approach: a Euthanasia Bill, and socio/philosophical arguments justifying mercy-killing. The Bill, largely of their own invention, provided for creation of a six-man medical team to study medical research and to hear applications for euthanasia from patients.

Taking the opposite view, the negative team charged that any form of euthanasia would destroy the doctor-patient relationship. They claimed that any form of legal euthanasia would be impossible to administer, and that such killing would be contradictory to the democratic process, comparable to legalizing suicide.

Rochester

In other fields, the Novice debaters gave a good accounting of themselves. At the Canadian-American Tourney at Rochester Institute of Technology, McGill tied with four other teams for third place out of 18 teams entering Bucknell and St. John Fisher came first and second with eight and six wins, respectively. The third place winners won five debates.

McGill's Affirmative team of Hélène Laurin and David Brandes won two out of four debates and the negative team of Wenda McNevin and Steve Cohen won three out of four rounds.

The topic under debate was "Resolved: that man possesses the ultimate weapon" with the various affirmative teams declaring the "ultimate weapon" to be anything from intellect to reason to sex.

Letters Club Presents An Evening Of Eakins

The first literary meeting of the McGill Letters Club will present as its speaker tonight an English lecturer, Rosemary Eakins. The meeting will take place at the home of Nick Russell, 3663 Lorne Crescent, Apartment 1, where she will speak on "Trends in Modern Literature".

Mrs. Eakins recently came into public view through her criticism of "Night is a Flaming City", Michael Malus' most recent poetry publication.

Literature

Mrs. Eakins has been teaching freshmen English at McGill for four years along with a summer course at Macdonald College in Modern Literature. She received her MA here four years ago, specializing in Nineteenth Century Literature.

Next year she hopes to work abroad on her doctorate, having been accepted by St. Anne's College, Oxford, for work towards her Ph.D., specializing in research in to the Victorians.

Before studying English, Mrs. Eakins received her B.Sc. at Mc-Gill. After this, she worked for a while as an economic geologist in the mining industry, both in Northern Quebec and Peru.

All students interested in literature are invited to attend the meeting at 8 pm tonight, and join the Letters Club. The second meeting will be held on March 18 with Professor Alec Lucas as the guest speaker.

New ASUS Candidate

Contrary to their report in Friday's Daily, the ASUS announces that the post of Secretary has not been filled by acclamation, but that two candidates are in the running. They are Judy Shapiro and Julia Zackon.

Elections will take place on Wednesday, February 27, from 9 am to 4 pm.

McGill, SGWU Open West Indian Exhibit

West Indian Week will officially begin at 6:30 this evening when Professor F. Clarke Fraser of the Department of Genetics opens the Art Exhibition in the Union Club Room, the first of a week's complement of entertainment and displays emphasizing the West Indian motif.

The Exhibition will be open to the public daily between the hours of 10 am and 1 pm until Wednesday, when it will be transferred to the Common Room at Sir George Williams University, McGill's co-participant in the week's events.

As a second expression of West Indian culture, the public is invited to congregate in the Union Cafeteria at 7 pm to partake of a rich variety of West Indian foods. Main items on the menu are 'Pepper-pot Soup, Pelau, Ackee-and-Saltfish, and a dish with the somewhat intriguing title of Dip-and-Fall-Back.

The diners will have their choice of liquid refreshment in the form of Blue Mountain Coffee or home-made Ginger Beer. The dishes are guaranteed to delight the most discriminating of gourmets, who may purchase their tickets

($1.25) at the Union Box Office until 3 pm today.

During the remainder of the week, students will have the opportunity to attend a student panel discussion tomorrow at SGWU, films and poetry readings Wednesday in the McGill Union, and a debate Thursday at McGill. The most festive of all these activities will take place on Friday evening in the Union Ballroom. The Carnival Dance will begin at 9 pm and continue festively until a somewhat advanced hour.

Slingshot

Then, on Saturday, Sir George Williams will be the host for two dramatic productions, to be presented in both matinee and evening performance, at 3 and 8:30 pm. The major selection, entitled "Africa Slingshot", is a drama about West Indian life written by a Canadian now resident in the West Indies.

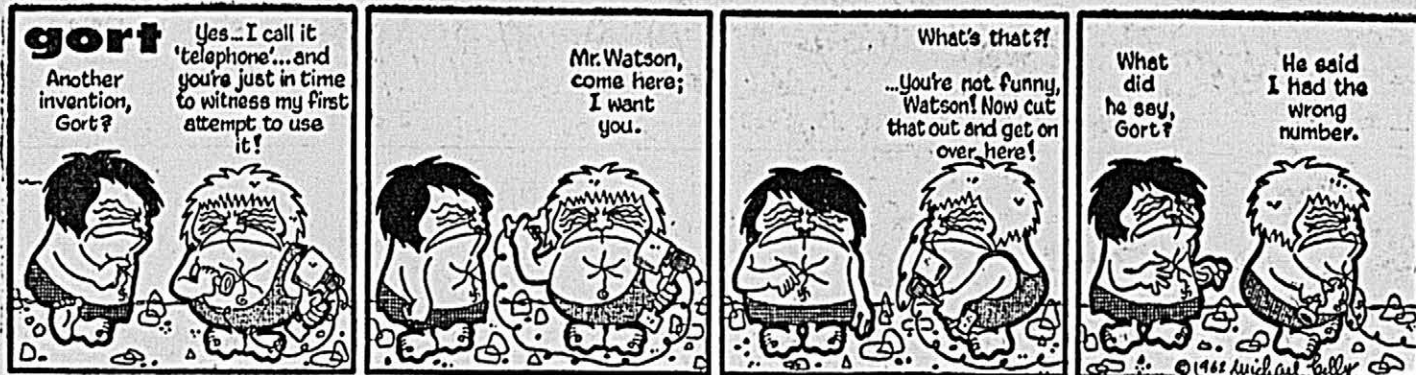

Tickets for a part or all of this varied program are obtainable from the students' receptionist at Sir George or in the McGill Union. The West Indian Societies of McGill and Sir George, who are organizing and sponsoring the events of this second Annual West Indian Week, are confident that these events will be equally if not more popular in 1963 as their predecessors in 1962.

Enhanced Understanding

The primary purpose of West Indian Week is intended to be the enhancement of understanding between the peoples of Canada and the West Indies. And its sponsors and organizers feel that, portraying the West Indian scene through the media of art, drama, music, discussions, and social entertainment, it is ideally suited to achieve this end.

The communication achieved by this attempt to "paint with clarity for receptive Montreal minds the intricate but interesting pattern that is the West Indian scene" has not been one-sided. Canadians have observed, participated, and contributed, and West Indian students have benefitted immensely from the experience of giving a valid interpretation of their countries' way of life.

This year the Exhibition covers a still-wider field in presenting the many and varied aspects of West Indian life, with increased emphasis on the idea of a mutually rewarding exchange between two disparate cultures and their peoples. And the diverse activities on the program are designed to satisfy the most diverse tastes.

Southern Students Want Integration

JACKSON, Miss. (CUP-CPS) — Mississippi's newspapers are not known for moderate positions on the integration question. The Jackson dailies, followed by most papers in the state, have printed diatribes against James Meredith and the federal government in recent months that are, to put it mildly, shocking to a casual reader from outside the South.

Even the mild stand of the University of Mississippi student newspaper editor against the violence at Ole Miss, brought low-level insinuations about her morality and good sense.

But in the midst of the state's racial hatred and invective, one dissenting voice is beginning to make itself felt.

The Mississippi Free Press, a student operated weekly, provides Mississippians with a point of view that has never appeared in their press.

Founded last December by members of the Student-Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, a Southern student action group, the paper is now under the direction of 20-year-old Charles Butts, who left Oberlin College, Ohio, to work for integration in the South.

Butts worked for some time in Fayette County, Tennessee, helping sharecroppers evicted from their farms for registering to vote. He came to Jackson and the Free Press, determined "to convince Negroes that they are not inferior, but indeed are human beings, entitled to all the rights enjoyed by other citizens."

Currently running the technical end of the paper is Lucy Komisar, a senior on leave of absence from Queens College, New York. Miss Komisar worked for two years on the Queens Phoenix, student paper at Queens, currently in hot water with its administration.

She has been active in civil rights work most of her college life and was jailed last year after a sit-in strike at a segregated Maryland restaurant.

The 21-year-old circulation manager of the Free Press, Dewey Greene, made news recently as he sought to become the second Negro to enter the University of Mississippi. Turned down by University authorities on the grounds he was unqualified, Greene has filed suit in Federal Court seeking a court order to admit him.

A native of Greenwood, Miss., the headquarters of the White Citizens' Council, Greene is a veteran of three years in the Navy.

The Free Press staff is paid a subsistence salary of $20 weekly, largely financed by donations from Northern Colleges. Students at Tougaloo College, the state's only integrated college, help with office work of the newspaper.

Casting For 'Dr. Knock' Is Nearing Completion

Casting is almost complete for the English Department production of Jules Romains' "Dr. Knock", which will be presented in Moyse Hall on March 14, 15, and 16. Romains' play, a satiric farce on the medical profession, holds up to ridicule both the unscrupulous doctor and the gullible public.

Neil Shee, known to McGill audiences for his appearances with the Players' Club, will play the title role of Dr. Knock. A.J. Frueh, Professor of Crystallography for the Geology Department, will be seen as Dr. Parpalaid, the honest, if gullible, physician from whom Knock buys a practice. Dr. Frueh has appeared in several English Department productions and with theatre groups in Norway.

Hypochondria

Ann Purdon will be seen as Madame Pons, a wealthy widow whose hypochondria makes her easy prey to Dr. Knock. Mrs. Purdon has appeared in many English Department productions, among them "The Lady's not for Burning" and "The Cherry Orchard." Dolly Chipman will play the part of Madame Rémy, the landlady of the hotel Knock turns into a health resort. Mrs. Chipman was recently seen in the Red and White Revue.

Driver Needed

Because of the illness of a student actor, the English Department is looking for a student (male) interested in pantomime to play the part of the car driver in the first act of "Dr. Knock". The part entails no lines, but a great deal of comic business. Interested parties report to Room 302, Peterson Hall, today between 1 and 2 pm.

The Players' Club will cast its final production for the year, the Experimentals, from Noon until 2 pm, and from 5 pm until 7 pm, today in the Players' Club Office in the Basement of the Union.

The general format of the experimentals is to be three student-written, student-produced, student-directed, and student-acted one-act plays. The plays have been selected as the best of those submitted. They are: two by Carol Brannin, and one by Dave Solway.

Other universities may be asked to send one-act plays, depending on the response at the auditions. In this case, McGill would present only one or two original productions itself.

Greenberg Examines Student Delegates Meet Practical Psychology At Liberal Conventions

by BONNIE STERN

Dr. Nathan Greenberg, Chief Psychologist at the Jewish General Hospital, examined the practical aspect of psychology and discussed the role of a Clinical Psychologist at a meeting of the meeting of the Psychology Club Friday.

"There are four important functions of a clinical psychologist," stated Greenberg, "These being psychological diagnostic testing; teaching and training; research; and psychotherapy." He then proceeded to examine and explain each facet.

Psycho-diagnostic tests measure the various aspects of individual functioning — be they intelligence, personality, or perceptual motor behavior. For example, an Intelligence Test administered to a person of any age tells a great deal — not only about the development of an individual, but also the style of intellectual thinking.

Personality tests are also important in examining an individual, the most important being the Projective Techniques, in which the patient is shown an ink-blot or a hazy picture and is asked to describe it.

"The individual will project his inner needs, wishes, fears and desires onto the ink blot," said Greenberg, "which acts as an external ambiguous stimulus. From these tests, we can tell a great deal about the social maladaptation of the individual."

"However, all is not as easy as it sounds," said Greenberg. In medicine, the doctor can usually pinpoint the malady by his patient's symptoms. However, in psychology, the unconscious motives for the particular symptom may differ.

Our diagnosis must be in terms of underlying personality structure. In this manner, a psychologist collaborates with a psychiatrist in arriving at a conclusion."

Team Members

Teaching and training is another important function of a clinical psychologist. The psychologist teaches his techniques to the members of this team — usually a psychiatrist, a social worker, and a psychiatric nurse. Students training in university are sent to the hospital to receive practical experience and to get acquainted with the various hospital techniques.

Research in a clinical setting has become a highly concentrated area of work. Psychologists are trained in rigorous research methodology, experimentation and controls. Many new techniques have recently been devised for the treating of patients.

For example, family treatment and diagnosis has been found to be much more effective in dealing with child disorders. Originally, parents used to dump their children into the clinic for treatment. Now, we refuse to take the child unless the family and parents are willing to participate in his care and treatment. We have found, that in most cases, this is more effective in a shorter period of time."

Finally, psychotherapy, or the treatment of the emotionally disturbed, is an important function of the clinical psychologist. "There are thirty-three different types of psychotherapy — psychoanalysis is only one," said Greenberg. "And in this type of treatment, the psychologist works closely with the psychiatrist in trying to clarify the conscious and unconscious motives of the patient."

Models Wanted

A number of co-eds are required for modelling for portraits in the forthcoming Camera Club Photography Contest. This involves being posed by a professional photographer from the School of Modern Photography at the club's Activities Night in the middle of next week. Winning pictures will be exhibited in the corridor of the Redpath Library.

Anyone who is interested in modelling is asked to contact members of the Camera Club in the Cue Room today at 1 pm.

by ANNE BEATTS

Approximately eighty students from eight Quebec universities met in the Centre Social of the University of Montreal as the Quebec Students' Liberal Federation convened last Thursday.

Seven official voting delegates attended from each of eight universities: Sir George Williams, Laval, the University of Montreal, the University of Ottawa, Collège Classique, Collège de Saint-Laurent, and, of course, McGill. Sherbrooke University, also entitled to attend the conference, did not send any delegates since they were undergoing exams.

Thursday evening's session was largely devoted to discussion in committee of the various resolutions which the delegates presented. Two of McGill's resolutions were finally accepted by the convention: that a Quebec Research Council be established to coordinate the efforts of universities and business corporations, and that the government pass fair employment practices legislation to prevent discrimination in business hiring and firing.

Opening the second session Friday afternoon, the Honorable Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Minister of Youth for the Province of Quebec, announced that residents of Quebec of the age of eighteen or over were legally members of the electorate.

Following the luncheon at which Lajoie spoke the delegates themselves voted to decide their officers for the forthcoming year. Eugene Lapointe of the University of Laval was elected president; Michael Miller of SGWU Vice-President; and Tony Pearson (no relation) of Loyola, Treasurer.

The convention concluded its business and the delegates left to register for the Senior Convention, held in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel over the weekend.

Senior Conference

At this still more momentous conference, which ended at 7 pm Sunday, 108 resolutions were presented from all of the 95 eligible counties.

At this senior convention McGill was officially granted voting prerogatives similar to those held by each of the 95 counties. McGill now possesses, as does each county, seven votes.

IN CHARGE OF THIS ISSUE

I hate sentimentality and gushy good-byes... and it's obvious that everyone else on the staff does too — they didn't come to the office to say farewell, ah well, this is it — the final round-up, and one by one, we, the foremost five, the stout-hearted desk editors of this revered daily leave for that last big news desk in the sky. 'Tis with heavy heart that we take our leave, and I know I speak for all of us when I say that it was a memorable experience, an era, an epic period of our common lives. Let us hope that we have made the year a little brighter, a bit more bearable, and perhaps even intellectually stimulating. For my part, I would like to thank all those who have suffered with me in my times of strife, and laughed with me in my times of joy, who have read my stories and enjoyed my mastheads (especially my anonymous friend at the MNI), and generally have been faithful readers of Monday's paper. It has been a wonderful year, and one of great personal joy, on this last regular Monday daily there was Anne (happy sweet sixteen), Wanda, Bonnie, Al, and the vulch. to all, good-bye, au revoir, and thank-you... FEBRUARY 25, 1963

Responsibilities of Office

Wednesday, the students of McGill will be asked to vote for the two highest positions in the Students' Society. In order that they may best judge for themselves, which people to elect, an attempt will here be made to outline the duties and responsibilities which accompany the positions of President and Vice-President.

The duties of the President are many and varied. Basically he must direct the operation of a $250,000 enterprise, and this in itself is a major task for anyone. In addition to this he must be capable of negotiating, on behalf of the students, with the Board of Governors, businessmen, the press, and governments at all levels.

It is the President of the Society who negotiates for the best insurance plans possible, who searches out the cheapest and most effective travel schemes, and who acts as the guardian of student rights against outside interference.

He must also be prepared to answer for the entire student body when unpleasant actions by students lead to moral and financial predicaments. In this capacity he is required to take measures designed to reduce rowdiness at football games, and punish offenders. This may involve placating railroad companies when students wreak $1,500 havoc on their rolling stock, while going to a football game. He must, in short, lead the SEC in determining when an act ceases to be spirited and becomes hooliganism.

In an era of growing government interest in universities, the President must be the voice of the students in presenting briefs on Education, income tax, and grants-in-aid of higher education. In an era of increasing need for inter-university co-operation, the President must be capable of meeting with his opposite numbers all over the country and establishing new avenues of cooperation.

Finally, right on the campus, it is the duty of the President to encourage student-faculty cooperation while protecting our hard-won student autonomy. We are fortunate that over the years a succession of able administrators has built-up a high degree of mutual respect between the students and the faculty and Governors. But, having won this respect, it is important that we be very careful to preserve it. While doing all this, the President must attempt to unite all campus factions into a cohesive body of intelligent, active, students.

The position of Vice-President of the Students' Society is no less important than that of President. He must, at all times be capable of representing the President in the latter's absence, while insuring the smooth, efficient operation of the Union, and at this time he must also participate actively in planning for the New Union.

Briefly, the administration of the Union involves the supervision of maintenance staff, the allocation of rooms for offices and meetings, no simple task in such limited facilities, the daily handling of repairs, breakdowns, and new demands, and the general supervision of the behaviour of the students who enter the building. This last point is not intended to imply that the President must be "big brother" to everyone; however he must be certain that the equipment in the Union is not abused or stolen, that fire regulations are observed, and that some degree of dignity is maintained at all times.

Indeed we enjoy complete freedom in the Union, but any serious prolonged breach of basic decency would lead very quickly to a takeover, by the administration of the University. A good President will ensure that such breaches do not take place.

These, in very sketchy form, are the offices you are being asked to fill. They place very great demands on their holders. Consider the candidates as carefully and objectively as possible. Then go and vote. Everyone of us has a stake in the outcome.

In Defence of Free China

After I read the article — the Fraud of Free China — which appeared in last Wednesday's Daily, I was convinced that Martin Rudner is one of the victims who surrender to that "Childish book" — A Nation of Sheep — written by William J. Lederer, a "petit naval staff". I am not surprised at his statements because I have heard this kind of argument many times since I arrived in this country. I have begun to realize that these criticisms are based on misinformation and ignorance.

It is admitted by most of the Chinese people that the government was corrupt and that was one of the main reasons why the Mainland was lost to the Communists. But since the government moved to Taiwan Province, it has been very much improved. Some foreign friends say that this has been the best period since the establishment of the Republic of China. The change of attitude of the government and the improvement that has taken place, are facts that are admitted by most of the Chinese people and by some other countries.

In 1947, there was a conflict between the Taiwanese and the army. That was caused by undisciplined soldiers from the mainland on the one hand, and Taiwanese — Communists on the other. That event gave no indication of resentment towards the government on the part of the Taiwanese. Following the disciplining of those soldiers and the elimination of the Communists, peace and friendship returned to Taiwan.

The term "Free China" has often been used by the foreign press. It refers to Taiwan in a geographical sense and also stands as a symbol of continuing resistance to Communists for the Chinese people everywhere.

Elections Contested

I don't understand it when Rudner says, "A candidate who attempted to oppose Chiang Kai-shek found his opposition limited to the four walls of a Kuomintang prison." But, when I look back to Lederer's book which is the main source of Rudner's arguments, I find that the case referred to is the Lui-Zen case. If this is what he meant it is far from the truth. Lui-Zen was tried in the Supreme Court and he had an outstanding lawyer to defend him. He was found guilty of concealing Communist underground workers. In this case two of my school mates were involved, so I know the details very clearly. Hus Fu-Lin, the candidate I mentioned in my first letter, ran for the Presidency in 1955. Mo Te-Huan and others were also candidates for the presidency. They still live in Taiwan. They are not in jail. They are preparing for the presidential elections of 1968.

The Constitution of the Republic of China declares that the President must be elected by the National Assembly. The National Assembly must be elected on the basis of regional and vocational representation of the whole country — thirty-six Provinces and five million people. Because thirty-five Provinces have been under the control of the Communists since 1949, no lawful elections can be held on the national level unless the Constitution is changed or its legality is denied. According to the Constitution, the power to interpret the Constitution rests with the Grand Justices composed of twelve independent and high standing justices. They can belong to no party. In 1955, the Grand Justices said that the present situation (national emergency) prevented a national-wide election and these delegates to the National Assembly and members of the legislative Yuan and Control Yuan representing the mainland provinces have to continue to perform their functions imposed on them by the Chinese people at the 1948 election.

To most of the Chinese people this state of affairs shows a faithfulness towards the Constitution and sincerity towards the people under the Communists regime. As long as the Constitution remains unchanged as established in 1948, the people can recognize their own government.

No Alternative

I believe that most of my friends would think that this is not realistic or rather foolish. But we have no alternative. The government would rather be accused by others, for instance, the Communists and those who are fooled by the propaganda, than by its own people. For one day we have to take the Constitution back to the Mainland and show to our people that this is the same Constitution they accepted and that is now returned. Personally, I feel it is my obligation to insist on devotion to the Constitution. I have no face to see my uncles and brothers, if it were changed. I believed this is also the majority's opinion. Certainly, if the Constitution were changed, there might be a reason for Rudner's criticism. To me, this seemingly foolish step is one of the most precious steps taken by the government. But it is also because of this step that there is misrepresentation and misunderstanding by my friends.

BY

ROY LEE

It is certainly very difficult to convince my Canadian friends who live in a vast territory, and never have to worry too much about their security. There are two basic reasons for this. First, they are far from the Communists from a geographical point of view, secondly, history has given the nations the task of protecting them. In the nineteenth century they were under the protection of British Navy. In the twentieth century they are under the protection of the United States Air Force. As a result, the question of whether or not, nuclear weapons are necessary for Canada took five years to answer and has still not been fully settled. All these facts prevent my friends from seeing what is "necessity" and what is an "national emergency".

Unique Position

During the last World War many countries established their refugee governments in London for example, Netherlands, Holland, Belgium, France, Greece, Yugoslavia. These governments had no elections from 1939 until 1946. It was the fact of Nazi control over their own countries which prevented them from doing so. These governments spoke on behalf of the people under Nazi control. They signed international Conventions, e.g. the Bretton Woods Agreements, Chicago Convention (Convention on International Civil Aviation) etc. This is the same situation in China today. Moreover, we have a National Assembly whose legality is guaranteed by the Grand Justices. This Assembly has the right to choose the president. If President Chiang Kai-shek can not satisfy the requirements of his post, they certainly will elect another leader.

Do my friends believe that Chiang Kai-shek can really control the National Assembly which is composed of 1589 delegates? Do my friends believe that I am under his control and so I have to defend him even when I am here? What benefits do I gain from Lying? What benefits will I gain from telling the truth? I came here on my own, I am not a so called "kuomintang". I have no intention to spread "propaganda". I speak on my behalf for the benefit of your knowledge and understanding.

Mr. Fred Stinson (P.C.), Miss Margaret Aiken (P.C.), Mr. Maurice Allard (S.C.), Dr. Marcoux, Mr. Arthur Smith (P.C.) and Dr. Thompson (Chief of Social Credit Party) are all Members of your Parliament, they made a trip to Taiwan recently. They have made reports and addresses since they came back. Before you give your conclusion, please go to see them and you will find out the Truth. Don't believe the "petit naval staff" — of William J. Lederer and certainly do not believe this distorter of the truth, Martin Rudner.

Once again, thanks to those who encourage me to present my views in the column of this paper.

Ho-pin (peace).

REQUIEM FOR A MONDAY'S DAILY

It has gone the way of all great journals, viz. the
New York Times,
the Herald Tribune, etc.

ALAS! ALAS!

President, Students' Union

Paul Bannerman

If elected, I will give strong leadership to the Union during the coming year, and will devote my full energy towards implementing the following:

- 1) dances every Friday afternoon, and more Union sponsored dances on weekends during the term;
- 2) expansion of activities night, perhaps implementing a Union "open-house", in order to interest more freshmen in student activities;
- 3) a reading lounge in the Union, supplied with newspapers and magazines of interest to students;
- 4) streamlining the administrative organization of the Union, both to increase efficiency and to bring more students into the Union Executive;
- 5) keeping the Union as comfortable and attractive as possible, as I strongly feel students should have a place to congregate.

PENSKECH

Paul, a third year student in Honours Economics and Political Science, has served on the Union Board of Managers for the past year. Thus he has a thorough knowledge of the Union Administration and would be an ideal leader in the transition period ahead. He has attended SEC meetings all year, as SEC-University reporter for the Daily, and has had numerous dealings with both the student and University Administration. On the basis of experience and character, we strongly recommend Paul Bannerman for Vice-President of the Students' Society.

COMMITTEE FOR THE CANDIDATE.

William Jones

The Vice President of the Students Society and President of the Union will bear a heavy responsibility in both administrative and executive capacities. The areas to which I will devote major interest are:

- (1) Updating the Union Board of Managers.
- (2) Introduction of younger students as officers.
- (3) Compilation of records and files in preparation for the proposed move.
- (4) Narrowing the gap between the S.E.C. and the Student Body.

PENSKECH

We, feel that in William Jones the Students Society has a candidate of outstanding ability, experience, and personal integrity, who would lend dignity and competence to the office of President of the Students' Union and Vice President of the Students Society.

The witnesses of our contention are legion: Students Executive Council Representative '63; McConnell Scholar; member Phi Epsilon Alpha Honor Society; Scarlet Key Society; E.U.S. Executive and I.F.C.; Vice-Chairman, Friday Night Revue, Winter Carnival '63; Vice-Chairman, Red Feather Blitz '62; Vice-Chairman Engineering Freshman Reception '62; President, Delta Kappa Epsilon '63; Intercollegiate Track & Field, Indians Hockey; experience in Physics Society, Players Club and Combined Charities.

Supported by these facts and his proven ability on the Students Executive Council, we submit without hesitation that William Jones is the candidate best qualified to hold this office.

COMMITTEE FOR THE CANDIDATE.

Lawrence A. Leger

It is my conviction that the Union needs an imaginative organizer and a firm leader in the coming year — a year in which the complete organization of the New Union must be established. If elected, I will direct all my efforts toward organizing the Union and its Board of Managers to ensure a smooth transition to the New Student Centre and as Vice-President of the Students' Society, I will endeavour to assist the President in every way possible.

PENSKECH

We, the Committee for the Candidate, feel that since Laurie is the only one of the three candidates who has held an executive position in the real sense — that is, one who has shown his ability to accept complete responsibility for an activity and carry it to successful completion, he is definitely the best qualified for the position.

Laurie's interest in student activities began in 1962. That year he was Chairman of the S.E.C. Awards Banquet. This year he produced the Red and White Revue, "Something for Nothing". Both positions involved complete responsibility and both were completely successful. If the move to the New Union is to be competently handled, Laurie is the man for the job.

COMMITTEE FOR THE CANDIDATE.

Chairman, SAC

Steve Gruber

If elected, Steve will do his utmost to carry through his ambitious program:

- 1) Revival of the Red and White Committee to spark campus interest in Intercollegiate Athletics.
- 2) More Intramural facilities to generate greater participation in the Intramural program.
- 3) Inter-residence athletic competition on a planned program level.
- 4) Facilitation of athletic participation for every undergraduate and increased facilities at his disposal.

PENSKECH

We feel that with Steve's two years of experience as manager of the Redmen Basketball Team, he has the necessary qualifications to carry out the administrative position of SAC Chairman with the utmost ability. His conscientious work while being manager is significant for Steve knows what the position of SAC Chairman requires, and he is ready to fulfill the necessities of the job. Furthermore, his work with the Daily in the capacity of a Sports Desk Editor qualifies him for behind-the-scenes know-how necessary for a job of this importance.

Steve as well has taken part in the administration of campus activities such as a Combined Charities Captain, and was a member of the Red & White Revue in 1963. With all these qualifications, we feel that Steve Gruber is definitely the man for the job.

COMMITTEE FOR THE CANDIDATE.

Eric Walter

The platform that I offer is not one of grand promises that I would not be able to keep. I offer, however, the following practical programme:

- 1) Rejuvenation of the Red and White Committee and its activities.
- 2) Closer liaison between Intramural and Intercollegiate activities.
- 3) To seek out and encourage students of great athletic proficiency to devote their energies to McGill teams rather than to other groups.
- 4) To promote a higher degree of participation in the university's athletic programme.
- 5) Close supervision and co-ordination of all the committees of the S.A.C.

PENSKECH

We, the committee for Eric Walter, feel that he is an excellent choice for this office because of his vast experience in organizing and participating in both athletics and other campus activities. In addition to his being a member of the Redmen football team, Eric has been active in: the McGill Combined Charities (as class representative), Red Feather Blitz, and Intramural sports; at all times displaying a high degree of leadership, administrative ability, and initiative.

This office should be filled by one who has an understanding of the student's athletic needs and the ability to bring about satisfaction of these needs. The committee feels that this man is Eric Walter.

COMMITTEE FOR THE CANDIDATE.

President, Students' Society

Sonny Gordon

Every politician is characterized by the promises he makes. My only desire is to devote all of my energies, ability, and experience to serve all of the students at McGill. The following are some of the key problems to which my attention will be devoted.

1. To the preservation of Student autonomy. I will do my utmost to maintain the high level of self determination at McGill.
2. To retain the sovereignty of the SEC in the transition to the New Union.
3. To the integration of foreign students into McGill and Canada, resulting in an interchange of ideas and culture to the mutual benefit of both groups. One way to achieve this would be a special and comprehensive reception program for all foreign students, which would integrate rather than isolate them.
4. To the improvement of Anglo-French student relations, especially between McGill and the University of Montreal. One method would be to have McGill and the University of M sponsor, organize, and attend a special bi-cultural week.
5. To a reevaluation of the activities application program so that more students can take an active participation in students affairs. Student appointments should be strictly on the basis of experience and ability.

PENSKECH

We feel that Sonny is the only candidate with the necessary experience, competence, and sincerity. Sonny holds a B. Com. degree from McGill and attended the University of Pennsylvania in their MBA program. He is presently a second-year Law student.

His executive ability is clearly demonstrated by the activities to which he has devoted himself: 1. Chairman, Open House; 2. Vice-Chairman, 1962 Winter Carnival; 3. Scarlet Key; 4. Redmen Basketball; 5. CUS Executive; 6. SEC Silver Award; 7. Graduates' Society Shield.

Because of his experience and realistic approach, we heartily endorse Sonny Gordon as a president of whom we can be proud.

COMMITTEE FOR THE CANDIDATE.

David Krause

(1) As President, I will use the power of the Students' Society to force the University to set up an effective advisory and guidance service to help students solve scholastic problems. As a member of the S.E.C. Education Committee, actively trying to solve students' problems, I have seen this to be the basic need at McGill. As a stop-gap measure, this fall the S.E.C. will organize a group of qualified graduate and senior honours students who will be available for this function.

(2) I will introduce a Comprehensive Travel Programme which will be: i) Flexible to meet students' needs; ii) Offering economical travel, both internationally and domestically; iii) Effective in the summer and at Christmas; iv) Complementary to the N.F.C.U.S. programme.

(3) The S.E.C. with N.F.C.U.S. and our sister Quebec universities, will work to obtain greater and more flexible tax reduction for students.

(4) I will work for the effective establishment of an International House as the only final solution to our foreign students' problem. This fall there will be an effective foreign students' orientation programme.

(5) The autonomy of the McGill Students Society will be preserved.

PENSKECH

David's considerable experience qualifies him for the position of President. Experience in business has equipped him for the task of administration of the very large budget of the S.E.C. David is in Third Year Honours Economics and Political Science. He is a member of the A.S.U.S. Executive and the S.E.C. Education Committee. We know that experience is the most vital thing. David possesses the most important kind, that gained from solving students' problems and from administration of finances. His goals are concrete, realistic, and attainable. It is time for a change, a time for the future of McGill and not the past, a time for an undergraduate President. Vote for David Krause.

COMMITTEE FOR THE CANDIDATE.

President, Women's Union

Susan Fromm

As Treasurer of the Women's Union, I believe I am in a position to see clearly the needs and obligations of the WU. Therefore, I am proposing what I consider to be a realistic program which can be implemented.

First and foremost, I intend to continue the excellent program of Secondhand Blazer Exchange, Book Exchange, Executive applications programme, Freshette Reception, Year dinners. To this I would add:

- 1) public campaign for scholarship funds;
- 2) increased publicity for closer ties between the woman student and the WU;
- 3) penny concerts;
- 4) student - faculty evenings.

PENSKECH

We believe that Sue has the three qualities vital for this position: intelligence (came second in her Honours Economics course last year); proven Women's Union executive abilities and experience (the present Treasurer and chairman of the very successful Third Year Dinner); and most of all the ability to lead, yet be responsive to her fellow women students.

For these qualities, Sue was this year appointed to the women's honour society, the Red Wings.

Sue, a resident of RVC, has also held the following executive posts where she showed her executive abilities: Vice Chairman of the World University Service; Speakers Chairman, Blood Drive, and assistant editor, RVC yearbook.

COMMITTEE FOR THE CANDIDATE.

Pat Wilson

If elected, I will endeavour to make the Women's Union play a more important role in the lives of the individual women at McGill by:

1. making the function of a big sister a more definite and personal responsibility.
2. promoting an applications program in which each woman at McGill would know of the activities in which she may participate, and through the Women's Union apply for such positions.
3. having a representative of the Women's Union on various campus organizations eg. women's fraternities and the undergraduate societies.

PENSKECH

Pat Wilson has exhibited administrative competence and leadership in extra-curricular activities as may be witnessed by: 1. Open House executive 1962; 2. Red Wing Society; 3. M.C.W.A. executive 1962; 4. Carnival executive 1962 and 1963; 5. Red and White Revue 1963; 6. Intercollegiate skiing 1962 and 63; 7. Cheerleaderette 1961 and 62.

She has gained practical experience with the workings of the Women's Union through such activities as — Freshette Reception, Shoeshine Day, Graduate Banquet, and University Settlement. Due to her administrative participation in a very wide range of student activities combined with her creative ability we believe that Pat Wilson is extremely qualified for Women's Union President.

She has worked on the WAA, the Blood Drive, is a volunteer worker at the University Settlement, and is in charge of co-ordinating the Graduation Dinner. At McGill Bev was an Engineering Princess and Choral Society Queen.

PENSKETCH

The above programmes need a man with experience. This Gordon has. He has worked for the S.E.C., the C.U.S., and the Freshman Reception Committee. PENSKETCH

As well as participating extensively in intramural sports, Frances was an Intercollegiate Badminton and Tennis team member for three years, Figure Skating President, and Winter Carnival committee worker. She was also on the Competitive Sports Council as Tennis President, Secretary of Recreational Activities Council, and Chairman of Managers' Committee. Having proved her personal capabilities her interest and her enthusiasm, Gail Owens would be a great asset to the Women's Union executive.

Peers Single Winner As Swimmers Downed Pucksters Tie Carabins; Bell Dents Twine For Hat

by EARL HALTRECHT

Unfortunately, the point results of Saturday's OQAA Swim Championships does not show the effort and potential strength of McGill's Swim Team. The team went down to a loss in their third bid for the Dougall Cup against the Toronto Varsity Blues and Western Mustangs by a score of 34-77 respectively.

Without making excuses for the team, there are several definite reasons for their showing. Firstly, five of the ten team members are rookie swimmers for the McGill team and have not had as much experience in intercollegiate meets as did the Toronto and UWO swimmers. Secondly, while Toronto and UWO swam against each other three times during the season, it was our team's first meeting with the Mustangs and second with the Blues. It also was the first time the Redmen swam in Western's pool this year — a great difference compared to our Currie Pool, which is thought to be architecturally superior. Lastly, McGill was forced to swim each man more often than the Varsity or Western swimmers, having only ten men in comparison to the Blues' 15 and the Mustangs' 13.

Peers Wins Trophy

As far as statistics go, McGill picked up one first, 2 seconds, 5 thirds, 2 fourths, 4 fifths, and one sixth place finish. Bill Peers scored the Red and White's only victory by keeping pace with the lead swimmer for six lengths and then pulling ahead for the last 2 decisive laps in the 200-yard backstroke. His winning time of 2:18.1 put him 3.1 seconds ahead of Toronto's Ridpath, and also won him the Springer Trophy, although no mention of it was made. In the fourth event, the 200-yard Individual Medley, Peers seemed to just nudge out Varsity's Barber for 2nd place, however the chief judge gave Barber the advantage. Both were clocked at 2:16.9.

Another near victory occurred in the 400-yard Medley Relay when our team of Bill Peers, Bob Tamilla, Pete Cameron and Glen Rulter finished a close second, 4.1 seconds behind Western. The Red and White held the lead for the first 14 laps, only to have Toronto's fourth swimmer take the last minute lead. In another relay, the 400-yard freestyle relay which rounded out the afternoon, the team of Pete Cameron, Bob Tamilla, Bob Mullins, and Duncan Finlayson had a good start, but soon fell behind to place third, 3.9 seconds behind Western's second place finish.

The 50-yard freestyle (2 lengths of the pool) proved to be a most exciting event, with Glen Rulter placing fourth, just 1.4 seconds behind Toronto's Marv Chapelle (first place finisher). Pete Cameron placed third (time of 55.5 seconds) in the 100-yard freestyle, right behind Varsity's Tom Verth (time 52.0) and Marv Chapelle (time 53.4). Thus Verth picked up the Buckley Trophy for this particular event. Don Henderson, McGill's only long-distance freestyler, unfortunately fell to the power of Toronto's Tom Verth, former three-time 'All-American' at Indiana University, and Western's Davis, therefore only managing 1 point for the 500-yard (20 lengths) freestyle — a new event in OQAA competition. Finally, in the tenth event of the 11-event triangular meet, Nils Vikander and Jay Lee placed second and third respectively, Western's Fowler taking the win in the 200-yard Breaststroke.

Thus it is seen that men like Verth (3 firsts) and Chapelle (1 first and 1 second) of Toronto, and Western's Fowler (2 firsts) and Davis (1 first and 1 second) were the big guns for the opposition and the backbreakers for the Redmen.

Diving

In the diving department, McGill's second-year diver Dave McEntyre executed six excellent dives to amass a total of 124.95 points, placing him third out of five divers. His dives included a forward, and a backward-1½ somersaults, reverse dive, and forward full twist. The most difficult dive of the afternoon, an inward-1½ somersault executed by Toronto's Houvinen, scored 39.6 points. In spite of the crowd-thrilling dives performed, McEntyre's diving

In the final game of the hockey season, played at the Paul Sauvé Arena on Friday night, the Redmen had to rebound from a 2-1 first period deficit to salvage a 6-6 tie against the U. of M. Carabins. Tom Bell sparked the Redmen rally, registering twice in the third period to complete the evening with a hat trick. Meanwhile at Toronto, in other weekend action, the Varsity Blues soundly trounced the league champion Laval Rouge et Or, 12-3.

Captain Larry Jones picked up 3 assists in the encounter against the Carabins enabling him to walk away with the team's individual scoring title for the second consecutive year. His season's output of 10 points was three better than that of his nearest competitors Dave Kerr and Tom Bell, who tied for second. Steve Melson and rookie Rick Moore ended up with 14 points apiece to tie for third.

Down two goals after four mi-coach, Leo Vigeant, feels that "college diving is worse than ever — it's 'kindergarten' compared to the American's style."

After the meet, there was a scene of dejection in McGill's corner of the dressing room, everyone feeling that they could have done better. However, later on (especially on the flight home!), optimism played the greater part, seen from Team Captain Nils Vikander, "...now I'm working for next year." And Coach Bob Gauld: "After this weekend's experience we can adopt one of two attitudes; either we submit to the superiority of the Toronto and Western Swim Teams and do nothing about it or decide that at McGill we are still able to take this defeat and fight harder to win next year — we have no thoughts of submission."

Thus, in front of an overflow crowd of about 700 shouting Western supporters in their own Williams Melville Spencer Memorial Pool, the Toronto Blues' held on to the cup, making it six times in seven years. When asked how his team manages to keep on top, Toronto Coach Larry Freeman replied, "We have been able to develop a lot of good swimmers and also have had many experienced international swimmers on our roster." In one or two years' time, after our swimmers get a little more experience, I'm sure it will be McGill's Bob Gauld that will be saying those words.

by ENN RAUDSEPP

Renegade

Tim Peters, the renegade Redman, played a great game for the Maplewood Avenue gang, opening the action of the second stanza with the first of his 2 goals of the evening on a shot from a crazy angle in the corner which went in off Tennant's body. Once again, the potent Redmen powerplay brought them to within one point of the Carabins at 8:27 when Leon Abbott scored his seventh of the season while Gervais was off for holding.

At 12:07, Rick Moore evened the count with a tricky backhand that caught goalie Arpin off-guard. Before the end of the period however, the teams traded goals, making the score 4-4 at this point.

Bell Leads Way

Then Tom Bell put the Redmen into the lead for the first time this evening at 0:50 of the third frame, culminating a dazzling series of set-up passes by linemates Jones and Molson. A few minutes later Simard tied things up for the U de M, and once again the teams were battling on even terms. This state of affairs was kept up until the final whistle had sounded, as Bell chalked up his third tally only to have it matched by Cusson's second and tie-giving goal.

The OQAA finals, pitting Eastern winner Laval against the Western Sector champs, McMaster, will be settled next Thursday and Saturday at Dundas, Ontario. The playdown takes the form of a two-game, total point series.

Hoopsters Avenge Loss To Queen's As Walker Leads Victory With 20

Barron Cops 167 Title To End Perfect Season

by STEVE GRUBER

In one of the more unexciting basketball games to be witnessed this season, the Basketball Redmen gained revenge on Queen's Golden Gaels by defeating them Saturday night 65-54 in an affair at the Currie Gym.

This victory put the Red and White on even terms with the Gaels, as each team has won on its own home court. In Kingston, the Redmen were beaten by 20, but in last weekend's tilt, they were never headed by the Gaels, who could not seem to find the range.

From the opening whistle, sloppy passing and poor shooting dominated play, with no one really distinguishing themselves for either club, and at the halfway mark of the first period, the Redmen held a commanding 20-13 advantage.

When the buzzer sounded to end the half, the Red and White still held a 28-19 lead, with Captain Jack Walker high scorer with nine points for the half. Neither team looked exceptionally strong at this point and it was left up to the final 20 minutes to provide a measure of excitement for the very sparse gathering who attended the encounter.

Second Half Livelier

Earland Pepper started the ball rolling with two fast jump shots, and this fast start set the pace for second half action so that passing became crisper and shooting sharper as the Gaels tried to catch up, but were unsuccessful.

The Redmen continued to pull away from the Queen's men, and held a 12-point bulge at the half, which fluctuated slightly as the McGillians held their advantage over the Gaels to finally win out 65-54.

Captain Walker sparked the Redmen to their more successful second period as he hit for a total of 20 points, while Chandler led the defensive forces in their efforts, and as well picked up 13 points in the process, while Sy Luterman picked up nine points on one field goal and seven for seven in foul shots to pace the Redmen as third high.

In the Intercollegiate Tournament held this weekend here at McGill, Larry Barron upheld the honour of the Red and White by capturing the 167-pound weight division championship by defeating Neil Patterson of Ontario Agricultural College in the finals.

In Barron's first match, he defeated Toronto's Griffiths in a 7-4 decision after nine gruelling minutes on the mat. Barron injured himself in this bout, pulling several ligaments between his shoulder blades. It required several hours of rub-downs and "hot treatment" to get him ready for the all important final match.

Although his back gave him considerable pain and trouble, Barron came through in great style to cop the championship.

Larry Barron is a Freshman and we can expect at least three more championship years from this grappler. Barron, who has won all his bouts handily this year, felt that this was the toughest opposition he had met so far in the collegiate circuit.

Five universities were represented in the two day tournament held on February 22 and 23. Western Ontario, University of Toronto, O.A.C. and Queen's vied for the title with McGill. Toronto was favoured to retain the trophy due to the presence of four grapplers from last year's championship squad in this season's squad. Queen's was undermanned lacking representation in three of the nine weight divisions.

O.A.C. pulled an upset by running up a total of 85 points while Toronto only scratched together 76. O.A.C. supremacy was evident from the first preliminary bout in the 123 pound slot right through to the finals.

Western trailed with 67 while McGill was held to 20 points. The low man on the totem pole was Queen's with only seven points to their credit.

Redmen Results

McGill did not fare as poorly as the final total indicated. Going into the meet, we had no man filling the 177 pound slot but Coach Turnbull withdrew two more men at the last moment.

Bob Howden came fourth in the 123 pound category as did Dave Owen and Richard Butler in their categories. Owen came third in the Intercollegiate last year and also third in the City Championships this year. This is an indication of the higher calibre of wrestlers in this year's encounter.

Frank Kenny, an individual champion in high school, lost out after the meet doctor declared him unfit to continue the match. Combatting Angus of Toronto, Kenny had his arm pinned underneath him as he rolled off the mat. This aggravated a previous shoulder injury which he had sustained in the first half of a dual meet against Paul Smith University in anuary.

O.A.C.'s entry in the 137 pound class won the "Most Outstanding Wrestler Award" Trophy. He won all of his matches by falls and a combined vote of all the coaches and the two referees was lauded by the grapplers.

The winners of the individual honours in the different weight divisions are:

123	Massaro	Western
130	Stevenson	Toronto
137	Jansen	O.A.C.
147	Black	O.A.C.
157	McMillan	O.A.C.
167	Barron	McGill
177	Merker	Toronto
191	German	O.A.C.
Heavy	Thompson	Western
